Is anyone or anything really to be trusted? I find it difficult to trust. I want to trust my fellow pilgrims, but I rarely do ... Trust is a gift, and the miracle of faith is this: God, our fellow pilgrim, trusts us. God believes in us. God has faith in us. It is God's faithfulness that enables us to have faith. Faith is the acceptance that we are trusted, that God believes in us. It is God's "amazing grace" that melts the ice around the heart and rescues us from our spiritual immobility. It is God's love that so moves in us that we are able to resist the forces of resentment in the world.

– Alan Jones, Dean, Grace Cathedral, San Francisco
